COMMENT ON SPORTS

By Pete Fritchie

Washington.- Wallace "Bud" Smith is still the lightweight champion of the world but there were those who doubted he would last the thirteenth stanza in his recent go with ex-champ Jimmy Carter, who was getting his chance the other night to win right back the title Smith took from him just a few months ago.

Carter didn't quite make it in Cincinnati the other night, although he had the champion sleepy in the fatal thirteenth. Smith sagged into the ropes at least twice, and almost went down. Carter had switched his attack to that of a stalker, seeking a knockout, when it became obvious he wouldn't win on points.

Smith's left hand flew into Carter's face all night, but Carter never came near being K. O'ed. So Carter stays the ex-champ for a while at least. Three times he has lost the lightweight title and won it back. There could be a fourth time but the Cincinnati Garden brawl the other night lessens the chances somewhat.

Meanwhile, middleweight king Bobo Olson is getting ready for the Sugar Man in his first title defense in the middle ranks since Ancient Archie Moore socked him before Archie ran into lighening in the form of Rocky Marciano. Bobo is the favorite but much of the shine has rubbed off his medal since the Moore K. O.

Robinson might give him a good scrap. Ray has beaten him and so should not be awed by Bobo's great performances leading up to his try at the light-heavy crown. The choice here is Bobo—maybe by a TKO.

It's true that Bobo is not a knockout man. He wears his opponents down. But that is just why he is likely to ruin Robinson, who isn't in the condition he used to be in.

Oak Wilt Appearing in Virginia

By C. L. Morris, Chief Division of Forest Insect and Disease Va. Division of Forestry

No other forest tree disease since the chestnut blight has created more National interest or resulted in as much time expended in research, survey and control during the past years than the oak wilt disease.

First identified as a fungus disease in the north central states thirteen years ago, oak wilt is believed to have been present in the Iowa - Wisconsin area at least forty years. The disease has become so widespread in forest in these states that control operations are now impractical and loss of the oak type forest there is reported to be progressing at the rate of two to four per cent over a ten year period.

Oak wilt is apparantly spreading slowly eastward, as indicated by the more recent date of infections in the eastern and southern states. No spot has been found in Virginia which dates back later than about seven years, a fact which indicates that timely control measures could prevent additional spread of the disease throughout the forested regions of the state.

Without cooperative control efforts by adjacent states where the disease has been found, the long-term benefits of any control program in Virginia would be greatly reduced. Because of the potential importance of the disease, the disease has been recognized nationally, however, and survey and control programs are in progress in all the states bordering Virginia.

Survey Activities

Oak wilt was first found in Virginia in 1951 in Augusta County. The first organized aerial survey in Virginia was conducted in 1952 by the Southeastern Forest Experiment Station, U. S. Forest Service. Coverage was limited by the funds available for this work. No additional infestations were located as the result of this survey.

During the summer of 1953, the Virginia Division of Forestry assumed responsibility for survey and control activties in the state A combination aerial and ground survey resulted in the location of thirteen spots in the counties of Highland (3), Bath (8), Warren (1), and Wise (1). Approximately 60 hours flying time were expended in this survey.

Again in 1954, the Division of Forestry continued survey activity of increased scope and intensity. The 1954 survey was supplemented by a crew from the Southeastern Forest Experiment Station which surveyed the Shenandoah National Park and also the southwestern corner of the state west of Bristol. Seven new spots were located in Highland, (3); Bath (3), and Washington (1) counties. Approximately 90 hours of flying time were utilized in the 1954 survey.

As a result of surveys conducted during the previous two years, the general area of infection has been delineated. Oak wilt has not been found east of the Blue Ridge Mountains and was generally confined to the mountainous areas in the western one-third of the state where the oak forests were more or less continuous. Similar distribution has been the general rule in other eastern states.

Because of the relatively recent discovery of oak wilt in Virginia, and the potential danger of loss to the oak forest of the Commonwealth, personnel of the Virginia Division of Forestry have cooperated with landowners in treating all known infection spots on an experimental basis to prevent futher spread. Since the most effective treatment at a reasonable cost is still in the development stage, several variations in spot control treatment were utilized.

In general, treatment involves the deep girdling of wilting or recent wilted trees. Oaks or like species within 50 feet of diseased trees are also girdled. The girdle and stump area of these trees . . diseased and healthy . . then is treated with a liberal quantity of 2,4,5-H (one of the hormone weed killers) mixed in kerosene. Such treatments insures death of the roots of healthy trees in the "isolation strip" and hastens drying of the upper portion of the diseased trees.

The treatment described above serves two purposes. It hastens the drying of diseased trees and prevents formation of the spore-bearing mats of the fungus of those trees. Possible spread of the disease through insects inhabiting these mats is thereby reduced. By eliminating adjacent healthy oaks within root-grafting distance, spread of the disease through grafts is curtailed.

Smith-O'Brien Nuptials Solemnized

The wedding of Miss Nelwyn Anthelene O'Brien, daughter of Mr. James Howard O'Brien, of Appomattox, and Mr. James Allen Smith, son of Mr. James Whiteford Smith, of Mullins, S. C., took place Saturday. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Omar Burnette, assisted by the Rev. Charles Addington, in New Hope Baptist Church in Appomattox County.

The altar was decorated with autumn leaves, basket arrangements of bronze chrysanthemums and yellow gladioli, and lighted yellow tapers in branched candlebras.

Mrs. George R. Strickland, pianist, and Mrs. Wyatt C. O'Brien, vocalist provided the wedding music.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a ballerina length dress of white Italian silk. The matching mitts accentuated the curved cap sleeve of the princess basque. Delicate designs of sequins and pearls highlighted the scalloped edge of the portrait neckline. The bouffant skirt was attached at the lowered waistline with self cording. Her ballerina veil of English illusion was attached to a double circlet of tulle petals and trimmed with sequins and pearls. She carried a cascade bouquet of white roses showered with stephantis and centered with a white orchid.

Mrs. John W. Hockman, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. She wore a ballerina dress of mauve shantung cut on princess lines. Matching silk braid edged the three-quarter sleeves and pie-cut neckline. A cap shaped design of velvet roses formed the headband and her shoes were also mauve. She carried a cassade bouquet of fall flowers.

Mr. Lewis Smith, brother of the groom, was best man. Ushers were Mr. John Bullerdick and Mr. Richard Smith, and Mr. Dicky O'Brien, brother of the bride.

A reception followed the ceremony at the home of the bride. For their wedding trip, the bride wore a tweed suit with brown accessories and the orchid from her bridal bouquet. Upon their return from a western trip, they will make their home in Appomattox.

The bride is a graduate of Madison College and is employed as County Librarian in Appomattox. The bridegroom, a graduate of Clemson College, Clemson, S. C., is with the Virginia Agricultural Extension Service in Appomattox County.
